

Digital Culture & Education

editors

christopher walsh

walsh@digitalcultureandeducation.com

thomas apperley

apperley@digitalcultureandeducation.com

editorial board

chris abbott

james albright

donna alvermann

catherine beavis

ian bogost

claire bradford

gunilla bradley

leicha bragg

andrew burn

victoria carrington

dean chan

mia consalvo

suzanne de castell

james p. gee

bill green

darshanna jayemanne

jen jenson

hyeon-seon jeong

carey jewitt

michelle knobel

gunther kress

kevin leander

nancy lesko

allan luke

carmen luke

kerry mallan

jackie marsh

shin mizukoshi

helen nixon

joanne omara

gareth schott

julian sefton-green

dana wilber

call for papers

Digital Culture & Education (DCE) is currently seeking manuscripts for the inaugural issue to be launched early in 2009. We invite submission of manuscripts for peer-revision that follow the guidelines below. Please note the deadline for the first issue is October 15, 2008. Manuscripts or works received after this date will be considered for subsequent issues. For further inquiries and submission of work, send an email to editor@digitalcultureandeducation.com

aims & scope

Digital Culture & Education (DCE) is an international inter-disciplinary peer-reviewed journal. This interactive, open-access web-published journal is for those interested in digital culture and education. The journal is devoted to analysing the impact of digital culture on identity, education, art, society, culture and narrative within social, political, economic, cultural and historical contexts.

submission guidelines

The scale and speed at which digital culture has entered all aspects of our lives is unprecedented. We publish articles and digital works that address the use of digital (and other) technologies and how they are taken up across diverse institutional and non-institutional contexts. Scholarly reviews of books, conferences, exhibits, games, software and hardware are also encouraged. The work we publish is both disciplinary and interdisciplinary, bridging the social sciences and humanities. We are interested in work and scholarship theorising globalisation, development, sustainability, wellbeing, subjectivities, networks, new media, gaming, multimodality, literacies and related issues. We encourage submissions in a variety of modes and invite guest editors to propose special editions.

e-access

Free access available and articles web-published several times a year

subscribing

Publication of Digital Culture & Education is ongoing. The journal incorporates an RSS feed to publish frequently updated content on the journal's web site.

style guide

Manuscripts should include:

1. Cover sheet with author(s) contact details and brief biographical statement(s).
2. Abstract of approximately 150 words
3. Up to ten keywords
4. Main body of manuscript. Articles 5-8000 words, reviews 1-2000 words, please contact the editors about submissions that fall outside this rubric.
  - a. APA style in-text citations
5. Endnotes for additional information.
6. List of references
  - a. Figures, illustrations and photographs should be numbered consecutively. It is the responsibility of the authors to obtain permissions for the reprinting/use of copyrighted images.
  - b. We suggest that at least one or possibly two levels of sub-heading be used to divide the proposed work into sections.